

If I want to buy something, I'll either walk or drive there and buy it. I don't want ANYONE coming to my house or calling my house with the intent of selling me something. This is just another modern form of infringement upon citizen privacy. I'm not going to call or visit a telemarketer at home and bother them with some concern of mine! Therefore, I don't them to bother, visit or call ME during my daily chores and my work at home. Wisconsin's law works for me. I prefer it over the Federal version. The banking group pushing for the substitution here in Wisconsin is just another lobbying group trying to sway government for its own benefit. Wisconsin's law benefits ME, the private citizen, the consumer.
